CHICKADEE

The key to feeding birds is understanding who eats what.

Most seed-eating birds have individual preferences that can be used to attract specific birds to particular foods and feeders. This is the basis for the Lyric family of bird specific mixtures that includes Lyric Cardinal, Finch and Woodpecker wild bird mixes. Offering a variety of mixtures and adding feeding stations can reduce competition and increase the number of species that visit your backyard.

Why a special mix for chickadees?

Chickadees frequently visit backyard bird feeders. These cute, friendly birds that call their own name seem to enjoy interacting with people and can even be trained to feed from an out-stretched hand. Chickadees are social, active and acrobatic, and provide day long backyard entertainment.

Lyric Chickadee is a premium sunflower and nut mix. It is formulated with the chickadee's feeding habits in mind. Independent testing confirms that they relish each of the seeds contained in the mix.

Will other birds eat Lyric Chickadee?

Yes, a variety of other birds will flock to Lyric Chickadee. In fact, it is designed to attract the arboreal (tree dwelling) birds that associate with chickadees throughout the fall and winter. These "social climbers" include titmice, nuthatches, kinglets and woodpeckers. They commonly forage in mixed flocks throughout the winter, and all love sunflower seed and assorted nuts. Quite simply, the food habits of these target birds determined how we formulated the mix.

Lyric Chickadee will attract and feed these colorful songbirds:

Bluebirds

Chickadees

Jays

Nuthatches

Titmice

Woodpeckers

Wrens

and more!

Is there a "best" feeder for Lyric Chickadee?

Lyric Chickadee is a gourmet food. We suggest offering it in a feeder that excludes large, gluttonous birds such as starlings, blue jays or mourning doves. Small hanging bowl-style feeders or tube feeders with smaller perches require more acrobatic ability to access the food. Chickadees spend most of their time in trees. Hanging feeders from tree branches will increase the number of visitors.

Ingredients: Shelled Peanuts, Black Oil Sunflower Seed, Sunflower Kernels, Black Striped Sunflower Seed, Pecans, Pistachios.
